

---

---

ALLIED POWERS

---

---

Volume 2 Issue 5

Newsletter

Autumn/Winter 2009

---

Keith Saunders joins Lynwood group IT team in helping with the new technology. The company is looking at developing the new I-plas brands which includes planks, kerbs, and railway sleepers all from recycled plastic.

www.lynwoodproducts.co.uk

We are pleased to announce that John Elsdon has joined as chairman to the Lynwood Group based in Halifax. Lynwood specialises in the manufacture and distribution of recycled plastic-wares and decorating products for the DIY sector. These UK manufactured products are available in DIY outlets across the UK in branded or own brand form.

John is assisting the company with the strategic development of its I-plas division which concentrates on the industrial and commercial recycling of waste plastics into useable products for the construction industry. These products take the form of decking, fencing, roofing battens, tongue and groove boarding and even railway sleepers. I-plas has recognised the versatility of waste plastic as a raw material and developed products that are environmentally beneficial and out perform the concrete, steel or wood that they replace. The customer base which is made up of large infrastructure and construction organisations in the public and private sectors, have recognised the considerable benefits of this material including its end of life recyclability.

Grahame Hall has been appointed as Chief Executive of this new part of the business which is already the UK leading supplier of recycled plastic construction materials.

The company, which has been in the business of recycling for some 27 years, already produces in excess of 10 million recycled moulded products per year, including the heavy duty builder's bucket which is in common use throughout the UK for building and domestic use.

www.i-plas.co.uk

---

---

ALLIED POWERS

---

---

LandEnergy

John Elsdon joins Land Energy as Chairman and talks about their plans throughout the UK.

Pellet plant in Wales

We were commissioned to acquire the business of Welsh Biofuels for our client Land Energy.

Principally the business takes in waste wood and converts it to biomass fuel for industrial and commercial use.

The project went well and we are happy that Land Energy is now the owner of the plant in Bridgend in South Wales.

The intention is to provide further investment into the business and create more jobs in the Bridgend area.

The first stage of the plan is to update the plant and equipment with a programme of investment of over £1 million pounds to bring the business up to the latest standards and provide a platform for growth in the coming years.

This business is part of a larger programme involving a number of sites across the country.

www.land-energy.com

ALLIED  POWERS

Land Energy appoints John Elsdon as Chairman

Following the successful acquisition of the Welsh Biofuels transaction on behalf of Land Energy we are pleased to announce this appointment.

John is helping with the strategic future of the Land Energy Group whereby the development of a significant number of plants throughout the UK will lead to the business becoming a major player in the supply of Biofuels in the UK.

Following this appointment we are also pleased to announce the appointment of Simon Weatherseed to the role of Group Financial Director.

Planning permission has been granted on two new sites, in Scotland in Girvan, and our second site in Prestigne, Wales.

The current investors have been supportive in this process and the company will be developing the sites over the next eighteen months. Land Energy is currently looking at a number of further opportunities in the provision of Biofuels.

Carrie Kennard is our latest member of the team to work with us. She has joined as office administrator to replace Sandy Childs who retired earlier this year.

Carrie has experience mainly within sales support, administration and lettings and is looking to broaden her knowledge within the finance sector.